

Zephyr's Animal Adventures

Zephyr was an amazing inventor. He travelled the world making incredible inventions for people's problems! He flew through the sky everywhere he went, the ruler of the kingdom of the clouds!

But one day, he woke up in a mysterious place! Trees towered over him and the floor was covered with leaves. He looked around and saw strange animals. He got up and walked over to one; it was swinging from the branches, with a banana in his hand!

"Hi! Who are you?" asked the monkey. "My name is Zephyr. I am an inventor!" said Zephyr. "Wow, that is so cool!" the monkey replied. "What's wrong? You look upset!" said Zephyr. A frown came across the monkey's face. "Well, well it's just..." the monkey stammered. "Everyone is cutting down the trees in my home for energy. And my friend, Mr Polar Bear, is also losing his home! All his icebergs are melting due to climate change!"

Zephyr was very confused, "What was climate change?" he thought to himself. The animals in the jungle explained it to him; it was where the world heats up because of fossil fuels and non-renewable energy.

Suddenly, Zephyr had the most amazing idea ever!

He was going to invent something to help his animal friends! "Hmm what could I do?" he thought.

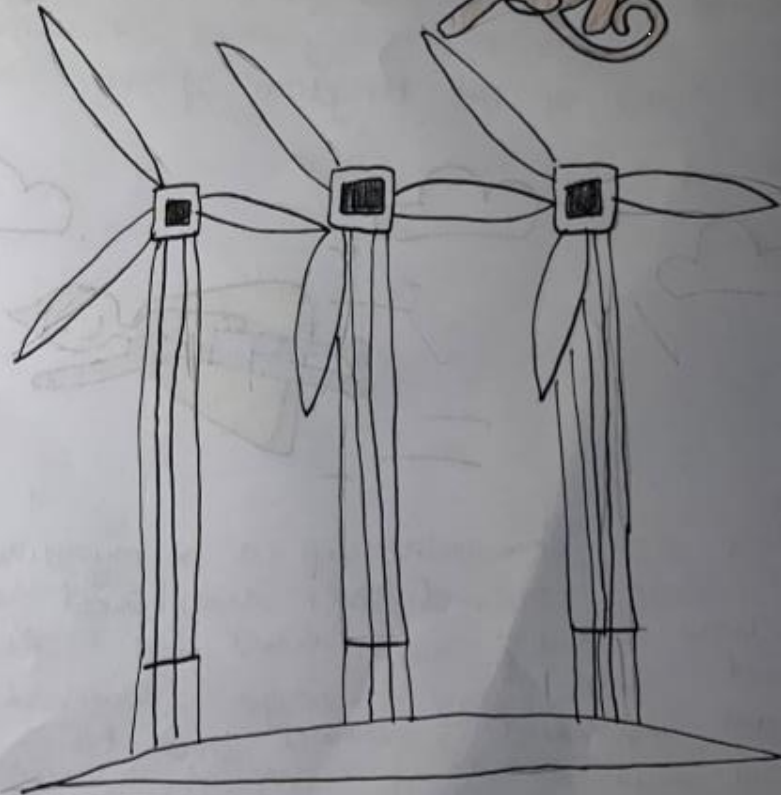

Zephyr put his thinking cap on and got to work!

"Morning Mr Monkey!" Zephyr shouted!
"Look what I invented, a wind turbine!"

It is to save energy and get it from a renewable source - the wind!

Wow that's so cool Zephyr!

Ten weeks later, Zephyr made the wind turbines. Hopefully now people could get their energy from the wind, saving the planet and animals! Thanks to Zephyr's incredible invention.

Mr Monkey and all his other animal friends facetimed Zephyr and told him how happy they were. He had saved the climate and their homes!

They all became best friends and lived happily ever after!

The End
